

Associate Professor at the Public Health Foundation of India (PHFI) - a research based academic organization. I am a physician and epidemiologist with postdoctoral and early career training at the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine (LSHTM).

With more than 14 years of teaching and research experience, I am the lead faculty on Pharmaceutical Economics and Infectious Disease Epidemiology at the Foundation. I also provide leadership to the Centre for eLearning at the Foundation. I have also served as member on various national and international technical committees and expert groups.