

Lea has a background in clinical psychology and has extensive experience working in the mental health space. She is currently working as a strategic alliances manager for a UK based startup in London called Medopad. Her role is to work with government bodies, ministries of health, key opinion leaders and stakeholders in the field of healthcare and medicine to focus on joint development opportunities and projects internationally.

Lea is also currently working with research labs who are using artificial intelligence and data analytics to improve diagnostics, patient care and bridge inefficiencies in the healthcare sector.